New brief on Arkansas' Career Pathways Initiative

National Skills Coalition has a new brief entitled Arkansas' Career Pathways Initiative: how TANF can support skills for low-income parents and how policymakers can help. The brief highlights Arkansas' successful state policy that helps low-income parents earn in-demand credentials.

The brief also expands on key elements of the CPI model that have supported student success, and identifies action steps that state and federal policymakers, advocates, and other stakeholders can consider as they seek to develop similar programs.
